“ Miss Betty was my mama's (Shirley Cox) neighbor and dear friend, though they met later in life, through their husbands, who had been longtime friends. They came to share joys, hardships, Jesus, and shopping excursions, coffee mornings, and much love and laughter sitting at one another's kitchen tables, and it was a delight to join them and just listen to them enjoy one another's company when I was able to be there.

Miss Betty was a devout Christian who showed it in everything she did. She loved her children and her grandchildren more than life itself, and she taught them and guided them in the ways of love and of Christ, and that, too, was evident if there was occasion for me to see them together.

She smiled, and laughed and seemed to just share that happiness as a part of her daily life, and I know she is deeply missed. When my mom passed, she left us "directions", and one was this: "Grieve, but do not despair, for now I sit at the right hand of my Lord and Savior Jesus Christ!"

You know Miss Betty would, probably did, say the same thing, or something much like it, and I can just imagine the two of them, beaming and joyous, but, true to selves, probably trying really hard not to start giggling at something that tickled their funnybones~!

When missing her gets really hard, think of that, and smile, and in the meantime, you are all in my thoughts and prayers.
