REMEMBER NANA

The spark is gone
the light is lost
the shell remains
but at what cost?
The soul floats free
but tethered it stays
tied too tightly
to its earthly days Lord pluck this bloom
from its stubborn ground release this spirit
let joy abound.
Draw one deep breath
of that heavenly air

lay down these robes
these worldly cares.
Cry not for me
For I see God's face
I am safe and warm
in Heavens's embrace.
When daylight fades
and night draws near remember me
and shed no tears
For all that was lost
has found its place
I am whole once more
Thanks to God's Grace.
