“ 6 year old nobby knees little kids in the school library. I always had to do everything you did. Played sports, I was a cheerleader cheering you on. Joined the band, me too. Went to the navy, well I signed up but then chickened out. I can't follow you this time either big brother but I will see you when I get there. Have the coffee ready!

“ Chris was closer to me than a brother from 6th grade until we both left for the Navy. We grew apart then but my childhood would not be the same without him. Of all our group of friends from those days, Chris really was the best of us. To his family, you are in my thoughts, I'm sorry for this terrible loss.

“ Chris was one of my first friends when I was a little girl. His mother, my sister-in-law Nancy, used to always tell me about Chris being the person who “broke me” from being mean to little boys. Apparently I had a nasty habit of biting, pinching, and hurting little boys, and Chris, who was a couple years older than me, decided to defend himself and bite or pinch me back. I looked up to him so much, like an older brother rather than a nephew. I continue to pray for all of his family and friends who knew and loved him! The picture is one of many special occasions we all shared on the hill. Rest In Peace, Chris! I love you!
