“ Always liked her, sweet and friendly. First time I met her I didn't even know her name but she needed gas and didn't have any money, I bought her some gas. Next time I saw her she was with her Dad and came into a store I was working at and she remembered me. Told her Dad Troy, that's the one that bought me some gas. I was moved by the fact she remembered and appreciated it. I became aquatinted with her and her Dad after that as they regularly visit the store, always ask her how she was doing and would joke with her that she better straighten up if she was going thru a rough time in her life. Sorry your life ended so unexpected and tragic. Fly with the angels I'll miss seeing you. Your friend, Beth Slagle.
